When Mr. Jones was saved from the frying pan

They talk yet of the change that came over Jones. Some said it was psychology. Some said it was a miracle. All said it was a mystery.

When they asked Jones, he said it was liberation from slavery—slavery to the frying pan, and to grease and starch.

Jones used to take his breakfast fried, and followed this with a heavy lunch.

In those days they said at the office: "Old Jones has a secret sorrow and he's sore on the world."

One day Jones started late—no time for the usual breakfast to be cooked.

Jones had a breakfast on Grape-Nuts with good cream. He was delighted with the crispness and rich flavor. Felt satisfied and "fed." Tried it again at lunch. Kept on breakfasting that way—often lunching, too.

Jones began to "perk up," talk up, step up—GET up.

"Let Jones show you how to do this," they began to say at the office.

As to Jones—he said: "That's a great food—GRAPE-NUTS."

There are thousands of Joneses, both kinds—reckless feeders and wise feeders.

THE UNIVERSALISTS

Took Many Forward Steps At Their State Convention Last Week.

The Universalists considered many important problems at their state convention in Waterville last week. Thirty-two parishes were represented by eighteen ministers and 67 delegates.

The committee on official reports and recommendations, consisting of Rev. Charles A. Knickerbocker of Waterville, Mrs. M. G. Folsom of Gardiner and Rev. Ashley A. Smith of Bangor reported at length. The recommendations were in essence as follows:

For greater loyalty to the State and general conventions.

With reference to full time superintendency, urging the matter of getting on that basis as soon as possible.

Commended work of Rev. Milo G. Folsom as superintendent of churches for the past year.

Urging more community work by the churches.

To create objectives for rural extension work.

Urging influence to increase the ministry of the church.

Urging better support of Japanese mission work.

Urging closer co-operation with allied organizations.

Urging constructive program for work during the year.

Urging parishes to send ministers and a delegate, expenses paid, to the Detroit convention in October.

That representatives be appointed to consider the request for a religious work at the University of Maine.

Urging financial assistance to parishes in need.

To give the president financial remuneration for superintendency work.

These recommendations were all adopted and the following resolution coming from the floor was also adopted.

That provision be made for a collection on some Sunday in the year or ministerial relief, instead of taking such at the convention.

Among the resolutions adopted were the following:

Continuation of the Murray crusade for membership; work in each community to aid endowment of Westbrook Seminary; favoring success of the conference for reduction of armaments, as proposed by President Harding; endorsement of the organization of Universalist Comrades and continuation of Laymen's Sunday; endorsement of state censorship for movies.

It was voted to invite the Maine Universalist Sunday School convention to meet with the church convention next year. The convention voted to meet in Auburn, one of the three places from which invitations were received.

The convention voted to ask the general convention for $1500 to aid in reforming full time superintendency.

Rev. A. A. Blair of Livermore Falls was elected president.

Those small ads in The Courier-Gazette are read by every body. That's why they are so popular and effective.

THE HUNTER'S INNING

May Now Shoot Deer and Birds.—Where, and To What Extent, Told Below.

Open season on partridge and woodcock began Saturday and lasts until Dec. 1. Five partridge is the limit a hunter may bag in one day and the season limit is 25 of this species. The hunter is allowed to bag six woodcock a day with a collective limit of 25 for the season.

Any citizen who has a hunter's license may transport one pair of birds, either woodcock or partridge anywhere in this state without accompanying the same, by purchasing of a duly constituted agent therefor a transportation tag, paying therefor the sum of 50 cents, and attaching said tag to the pair of birds. Only one pair of game birds may be shipped in seven days. Violation of this law will bring a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $50 and cost for each offense, and in addition thereto five dollars for each bird taken, caught, killed, had in possession or transported in excess of the number started in the foregoing paragraphs.

The deer hunting season in Aroostook, Penobscot, Piscataquis, Somerset, Oxford and Franklin counties opened at sunrise Saturday and will continue for two months. The open season in Washington and Hancock counties, changed by the last legislature, is from Oct. 15 to Dec. 15, while in the other eight counties of the State it is only during November.

Deer and birds are reported plentiful, but due to the lack of frost, the leaves are still on the trees making hunting conditions unfavorable for the early part of this month.

Only one female deer may be killed according to the amended law, which also allows a hunter to kill a buck with antlers. A spike-horn deer is not considered a buck with antlers. No loaded firearms are permitted to be carried in automobiles.

Gov. Baxter has issued the following warning to gunners:

"The approach of the hunting season finds the woods of Maine unusually dry and the danger of forest fires is critical. I urge hunters and all others who go into the woods to cooperate with our Forest Service in doing everything to protect the valuable timberlands of the State. I hope that the opening of the hunting season will not be followed by an increase in the number of forest fires.

"Under the laws of the State the Governor has authority to suspend the Open Season for hunting and he can prohibit the carrying of fire-arms in the forests of the State but this authority should be used only in case of a real emergency. Our forests must be protected from fire and every precaution against fire must be taken by those who are about to enjoy the liberal privilege which the State gives them to hunt in, and enjoy the woods of, Maine."

BOZE IN BOSTON

That very readable Talk of the Town column of the Boston Herald was broken into last Thursday by The Courier-Gazette's old right bower Boze, in this fashion:

Last Saturday we spoke of Charles H. Fogg of Houlton, Me., who loves Aroostook potatoes with a Maine patriotic devotion, who is president of the Maine Press Association, and who is off on a long-delayed vacation. This has stirred A. B. Crocker of Somerville to recall an Aroostook which was then budding into fame, but had not yet challenged and licked the world.

Mr. Crocker tells us that he had a speaking acquaintance with Houlton and Aroostook county 36 years ago. That was before the Bangor & Aroostook railroad was built; Houlton was then a terminus instead of a way station. Aroostook was even then a potato country, but not "the" potato country it is today. In the season the main street of Houlton was a sight to see; double teams hauling potatoes to the station, where the potato buyers had their houses and stored the potatoes for shipment. Seventy-five cents per barrel, hauled from the field, was considered a fair price. Happy days!

E. L. Cleveland, now the "potato king," was just starting his career in the days which Mr. Crocker recalls. He was a potato buyer. He is a Canadian boy, and came early to Houlton. The Aroostook has made great strides in the years since Cleveland started buying potatoes. Many a fortune has been made there on the nourishing even though unpoetic potato. Not many poems have been written on potatoes, but many checks have.

"In '86," Mr. Crocker said to us, "Charlie Fogg was a school boy, so if he hasn't had a vacation for 30 years it's high time he took one." The trouble about Maine folks taking vacations is that they are so mighty proud of their old State that they never want to go anywhere else. Mr. Crocker bears us out in this. "The Aroostook," he says, "raises the best men, women and potatoes in the world. Here's wishing Charlie a pleasant voyage and a safe return to his native Houlton." Amen.

HOW PLEASANT THE BANKS.

How pleasant the banks of the clear-winding Devan.

With green-spreading bushes, and flowers blooming fair;

But the bonniest flower on the banks of the Devan.

Was once a sweet bud on the braes of the Ayr.

Mild be the sun on this sweet-blushing flower. In the gay ray morn, as it bathes in the dew.

And gentle the fall of the soft vernal shower. That steals on the evening each leaf to renew.

Oh, spare the dear blossoms, ye orient-breezes, With chill hoary wing as ye usher the dawn; And far be thou distant, thou reptile that seizes The verdure and pride of the garden and lawn.

Let Bourbon exult in his gay gilded lilies, And England, triumphant, display her proud rose; A fairer than either adorns the green valleys Where Devon, sweet Devon, meandering flows.

OUR PUBLIC LIBRARY

The recent changes at the Public Library are of such marked advantage that they are warmly commended, not only by the public but also by the librarian and her assistants with whom rests the responsibility of the institution's successful administration. After the method in vogue among progressive libraries the Rockland library now employs the open shelf system, by which patrons have immediate access to the books and can browse among them at will, this freedom of examination allowing them to get acquainted with the books to a more intimate degree than through the dry medium of a catalogue. If the book at the moment desired is not on its accustomed shelf, some book quite as desirable may in this way become available, the result being a satisfied citizen and an increase in the library's volume of circulation. The setting aside of the north wing for the use of children has become at once a thing of striking success. Here are now gathered all the juvenilia of the library, contained upon stacks built low and easily accessible. The room throughout the day has the personal supervision of the assistant, Miss Rounds, and the children of the city, under this system, are frequenting the library in steadily increasing numbers, and thereby adding to its usefulness as an instrument of education and refinement. If any were to go the length of arguing that our present generation at times inclines to undervalue their Public Library, we think there will be no question as to how it will be regarded by the children of today when they shall have advanced to their periods of maturity. By the way, does the reader of this little word of appreciation ever drop into the beautiful library to give it, as the modern saying is, a once-over? Not occasionally to perform this piece of civic duty is to miss a source of high enjoyment.

Although some baseball fans would have preferred that both New York teams did not win pennants, there is already the greatest amount of local interest in the World Series that there has been since the last time that Boston had a contender. It will certainly be a wonderful battle between the Grants and Yankees for the former has Kelley, who led the National League in making home runs while the Yankees have Babe Ruth, who leads the world. There will be some nerve-wrecking moments when those powerful sluggers come to bat. The series begins Wednesday afternoon and will be played each day (Sunday included) until one team has won five games and the championship. The Courier-Gazette will present the returns of each game by half innings. We invite you to call 770 for the returns, and to call as often as you like.

The panel display which has been exhibited by the State Health Department at many of the fairs this fall, arrived too late for use at the Union fair, but may be seen for a limited time in the rooms of the Knox County Public Health Association in Havener block, nearly opposite the Courier-Gazette office. The placards and pictures lay special stress upon typhoid fever, and the causes which lead to that contagious disease. It is suggested that teachers in the public schools would do well to take their pupils to see the display, the lessons of which cannot fail to make a lasting impression. Miss Chaplin, public health nurse, has her office in the rest room conducted by the Knox County Public Health Association, and the headquarters of the Red Cross Christmas seal drive will also be there.

A Rockland man who met John L. Goss in Boston the other day, found the well known granite dealer keenly interested in the affairs of this city. Mr. Goss expressed himself as pleased at any evidences of progress shown in this city and like many others is watching the developments of the fish industry now that its affairs are in the hands of a different organization. The concern has his best wishes, and he hopes that Rockland will derive the expected benefit from it. Incidentally Mr. Goss is a great booster for The Courier-Gazette. When the hour comes for him to peruse his newspapers and magazines the old "C-G" comes first, he says, for it keeps him in touch with the events of the community in which he is as much interested as he is in Boston.

An observant reader of The Courier-Gazette, J. A. Tolman by name directs our attention to the four deaths recorded in the issue of Sept. 27. The aggregate age of the deceased persons was 346 years showing the remarkably high average of 86½ years. Two of the persons were nonagenarians.

LITTLEFIELD'S SPICY REPLY

Puts Responsibility In School Building Matter Squarely Up To City Government—Figures As To New Street Lighting System.

At the October meeting of the City Government last night a communication from A. S. Littlefield, chairman of the citizens' committee on new High School building, was read. It was a tart rejoinder to the inquiry started by Alderman Erskine at the September meeting, when the suggestion was implied that the committee was moving tardily in the matter.

Legal language is sometimes clothed with words which the layman do not understand, but Mr. Littlefield's communication had no such handicap. After the mayor had read it everybody knew what the attorney meant. It was, in fact, painfully blunt. "You are the body responsible for the delay and it is you assumed the responsibility," he told the City Government. The matter of a new street lighting system, in which every citizen has or should have a vital interest, was brought to the front by the report of George S. Williams, general superintendent of the Central Maine Power Co. The present installation consists of 70 arc lights at $75 each and 110 60 c. p. lights at $22.90 each, making the city's total lighting bill $7844. Mr. Williams recommends that five of the Main street arcs be distributed in new locations throughout the city, and that in place of the present lighting system on Main street 31 ornamental poles of General Electric design bearing 600 c. p. lights be erected. These would cost $90 each, and would mean an increase to the city of $2790 a year. But the Central Maine Power Co. in addition to installing a modern system, such as live cities use, would change all of the 60 c. p. lights to 100 c. p. without increased cost. Under the new contract the city's lighting bill would be $10,634 a year. The total construction cost, borne by the company would be $10,000. The matter was referred to the street lighting committee.

Mr. Littlefield's communication in regard to a new High School building follows:

Rockland, Sept. 12.
To the Mayor and the City Government of the City of Rockland: By the newspaper report of your September meeting, you appear to wish the inference to be drawn that action by you on the question of a new High School is not being taken, because you are awaiting some action on my part. Courtesy would seem to have dictated that you should have informed me of this fact before throwing it out as an excuse for non-action by you.

On June sixth, a report of the Citizens' Committee was made to you, suggesting a method of financing a new High School building, in which it was said, "The general scheme the Committee believe to be legal and workable, and the details thereof, along the above general lines, may be left to be worked out by the suggested Board of Directors, solving such questions, legal and economical, as may, in the development of it, arise."

It has been suggested that, literally carried out, the suggestions in that report made, might conflict with the majority opinion of the Supreme Court of the State of Maine, in the case of Reynolds v. Waterville, 92 Maine, 292. The purpose being to provide the city for immediate use an adequate High School building, the city at this time being unable because of the constitutional limitations, to raise the necessary money by loan, to itself erect the building, it is of course possible to make the contention that any method of obtaining it is an evasion of the constitutional restriction.

The case above cited however, in common with other cases, endorses the doctrine that although a municipal corporation has reached its debt limit, it may make time contracts in order to provide for municipal wants, provided there is to be no payment or liability until the services be furnished, and then to be met by annual appropriation and levy of taxes.

Under this doctrine, the city may clearly contract for a term of years for the rental of a High School building. It is certainly reasonable that a corporation which should undertake to furnish such a building would be entitled not only to get the carrying charges by way of rental, but an additional sum, which, in a reasonable number of years, taking into account the fact that such a building is not likely to be of much value for other purposes, and its desirability for school purposes, as shown by past history, necessarily confined to a limited number of years, will return to the corporation the money invested, so that ultimately it may own the property, as the corporation's profit, for the chance it takes, and shall thereby receive something over and beyond the lowest rate for which the money for construction purposes, can be obtained.

In my opinion the city can legally enter into a contract of rental with a corporation which shall agree to build an adequate building, paying in advance on account of the rental such sum as may be immediately available, which I understand to be thirty-five thousand dollars; and agreeing to pay from year to year a rental which, on the assumed life of the building and its desirability for High School purposes, will restore to the owners the cost thereof, and may all carrying charges, it may be and perhaps is longer period of years than suggested in the report of the Citizens' Committee.

Objection to this plan may be made, that ultimately the city has nothing. There can be no legal objection to inserting in the contract of rental an option on the part of the city to purchase the property at any time, and a reasonable basis fixed, on which the money already paid in rentals shall be allowed on account of the purchase price. The city would not be justified in entering into such a contract of lease on any other terms.

The city by such an arrangement may shorten the period of private ownership of the building as much as it save by accumulating a fund for the purchase of it.

As stated from the quotation in the original report given above, I believe there is no difficulty in working out the matter along these lines.

If the City Government wish all the papers to be drawn, and the details all fixed before it takes any action, it need wait no longer for me, for it will be its own fault if it does not do it. Personally I have seen no indication in the action of this City Government which causes me to think it has any real intention of accomplishing anything along the lines of a new High School building.

After holding meetings, obtaining petitions, and in various ways, the sentiment of the citizens of the city, including a public hearing by a Committee of the City Government, an election was held, overwhelmingly in favor of the construction of a High School building. Since that time, the records do not show that any action whatever has been taken by the City Government. If it is ready to cease trying to find excuses for delay, and take some action showing that it means business, I am ready to devote as much time as any other citizen in undertaking to accomplish the purpose, but I wish it here and now understood that I am otherwise done with the proposition, and you are not further justified in laboring under a misapprehension.

You are the body responsible, and it is time you assumed that responsibility. If the above method is not legal and workable, then the method put out by the State Department of Education certainly is not, and the only way I now see to obtain it is to assess enough taxes to pay for it while it is in process of construction. In other words, to do as the State did with reference to the highway bridge, pay for it in a period of two years, which personally I believe to be the most desirable method, and if it is pursued, I am not only ready to pay my proportion of the taxes for that purpose, but I will contribute an equal amount in addition for the purpose of lightening the burden of anyone who may really be unable to pay.

Distinctly understand that so far as I am concerned, the whole matter is now up to you.

A. S. Littlefield.

"In view of City Solicitor Tirrell's report that a plan of financing the building would be necessary I think we were justified in asking if anything further had been done," said Alderman Erskine.

"It seems to be more or less a matter of misunderstanding all around," said Mayor Thorndike. "A layman certainly wouldn't want to go ahead without the best legal judgment he could get. We would find ourselves in deep water if we attempted without proper authority to erect a building for $175,000, and the cost of which might run anywhere from $200,000 to $300,000."

"There was certainly no intention to show discourtesy to Mr. Littlefield," said Alderman Erskine.

Ralph W. Richards, resigned as overseer of the poor, on account of the increasing demands of his private business. Miss Dorothy Snow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Snow, was elected in his place.

Eugene A. Rhodes' communication, offering to bond his property at 6 Gay street place to the city in exchange for maintenance, was referred to the committee on city property.

Pierre Havener was granted a license to conduct a billiard room.

Two cemetery bequests were received—one of $100 from the heirs of the late J. H. Flint, and one of $100 from E. E. Strout for the care of their respective lots in Achorn cemetery. Both were accepted.

C. E. Miller and 50 others petitioned for an incandescent light on Marine street. Arthur Smalley and others petitioned for an incandescent light on South street, near residence of Mrs. Joseph Clark. Both petitions were referred to the committee on street lights.

The monthly roll of accounts showed a total of $4023.

The new city ordinances presented at the September meeting, relating to cattle, and expropriating in public streets, received final passage.

Alderman Sullivan's order for an incandescent light at the corner of Holmes and Prospect streets was referred to the lighting committee.

A BIG CONVENTION

Rockland Next Week Will Hear Distinguished Missionary Workers At Methodist Church.

The New England Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church pays Rockland an unusual honor this year by holding its 52d annual meeting here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. It is very seldom that a convention of this size and importance meets in a city of Rockland's population. More than 100 delegates are already registered and it is the intention of the pastor, Rev. Eugene V. Allen, and the committee, that everybody shall be well taken care of. Rockland must prove itself not insensible to the great honor which is being shown.

The general chairman of the local committees is Mrs. S. H. Rogers. Mrs. H. A. Dunton is in charge of the general arrangements. The other committees, chairmen are: Hospitality, Mrs. Rebecca Ingraham; registration, Mrs. H. V. Tweedie; meals, Mrs. Austin Smith; finance, Mrs. George A. Nash; music, Mrs. L. N. Littlehale; reception, Mrs. Beach. Mrs. W. H. Armstrong will be the soloist.

The sessions will be prefaced Monday evening by an informal reception to conference secretaries and treasurers and district secretaries at 7:30. Mrs. Nellie D. Morgan, president of the New England Branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society is a Maine woman. She has been very prominent in missionary circles of greater Boston; has served for many years as president of Boston district and as titling secretary for the New England Branch. At an early age Mrs. Morgan engaged in the evangelistic field, and for several years gave her entire time to that work, principally in the States of Maine and New Hampshire. No church, large or small, ever appealed to her in vain. At campaigning she was always in great demand, being one of the most successful evangelists in the State. Mrs. Morgan is the wife of F. H. Morgan, field agent for the Zion's Herald, is of a commanding presence and a fluent speaker.

Mrs. R. F. Raymond, wife of Judge Robert H. Raymond of the Supreme Court; Miss Lu Porter, preceptress of Lassell Seminary, are among Mrs. Morgan's vice presidents.

Mrs. Lemuel H. Mueling, chairman of the finance committee, is the wife of President Murling of Boston University.

The Methodist church should feel justly proud to be able to entertain these very prominent women.

CAKE SUFFICIENT FOR ARMY

Monster Confection That William I of Prussia Set Before Thirty Thousand Fighting Men.

When William I of Prussia gave his army a regale in 1790 he let them feast on vegetables and roast beef, and then wash it down with lots of beer and ale, according to William S. Walsh, who has a taste for compiling curious information. When the thirty thousand guests had almost finished their meal they saw their dessert coming on a tray drawn by eight horses. The tray bore a gigantic cake—said to have been the largest cake ever baked. It was twenty-four feet square and a foot and a half thick.

Mixed in the cake were products which would have fed a small village. More than thirty-six bushels of flour were mixed in it; 200 gallons of milk had been used; one ton of butter had made it rise; 5,000 eggs had been patiently broken and beaten into the batter. The result, baked under extreme difficulties, was the big cake, containing over 850 cubic feet of the goodly. But the thirty thousand guests had filled themselves on roast beef and vegetables and it was impossible for them to eat all the cake, although it would have been possible for them to do so had they all been hungry. Obviously, so much cake could not be allowed to go to waste. So the remainder of it was cut up and distributed in nearby villages to the various needy families, who made short work of it.

The Sea Firefly.

It does seem sometimes that for every land animal there is one corresponding to it in the water. Or is it the other way? We all know the firefly, which lights up the summer evenings with its tiny will-o'-the-wisp spark. Well, there is also a sea firefly. It is really a shellfish, which wears near its tail two winglike pieces which help it to make its way along through the water. At the front end of the shell, which is pointed, there is a queer little round bubble-like arrangement, which, at night, gives out a light so strong that its light is not dimmed in the least even when there is a bright lamp shining near it.

Scrofula, with its swollen glands, running nose, inflamed eyelids, cutaneous eruptions, yields to Food's Sarsaparilla—adv.

Still Silent After Several Years' Use

Reo closed cars—5-passenger sedan and 4-passenger coupe models—are singularly free from distracting squeaks and noises after long use. Of course, that's the most desirable—and the rarest—quality you can have in a closed car.

Reason is that Reo bodies are built as the Reo chassis is built. You know the Reo formula "50 per cent oversize in all vital parts."

That rule applies to sills, frame work, and the metal bracings in Reo bodies.

Reo bodies "stay new" after long use because they are made right—best quality of materials and most skilled craftsmanship.

Steamship Jolie, Capt. Harold J. Philbrook, arrived at Freetown, Sierra Leone, Sept. 8.

The Pythian Sisters' Circle will meet Wednesday afternoon with Edna McIndire, 13 Fulton street.

Bates College has a Freshman class numbering 129 this fall, and a total registration of 549. Bates is booming.

At the regular meeting of Local Union, C. & J. of America, supper will be served. All members are asked to be present.

The district convention of the Pythian Sisters will be held in Camden Friday, with sessions afternoon and evening. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock by the ladies of Knox Temple.

Capt. E. W. Dunton, who recently returned from Rondonia, Mexico, has been obliged to leave the craft temporarily, on account of illness. He is at 55 Thorndike street, Arlington, Mass.

Frank E. Wheeler, who has been in charge of a summer hotel in Bangor, is spending a few days at Hotel Rockland, which he formerly managed. He plans to spend his vacation in Framingham, Mass., and to go South for the winter.

John Stearns was a bit mystified Friday, when he discovered on the shore near Rockland Breakwater a motorboat, which had been partly destroyed by fire, and had no engine in it. The mystery was explained when he learned that the boat belonged to Charles Patterson of Maverick street, and had been abandoned after passing through the Bicknell fire. About the same time Mr. Stearns discovered a strange object floating midway between the Breakwater Light and shore. Curiosity got the better of him, and despite his advanced years and the chilly water he doffed his clothing and swam out to investigate. What he found was a boat's rudder, which he has left at this office, pending the appearance of the owner.

Indications point to a big house at Park Theatre Thursday night, when Walter Scanlan, the famous singing comedian, comes for one performance in "Irish Eyes." The play is a love romance, and does not touch upon any controversial subject. Mr. Scanlan will sing several new Irish ballads.

Charles W. Orbeton of The Courier-Gazette force took the "forms" yesterday, and began a fortnight's vacation, which he is spending with Mrs. Orbeton and Mrs. Sadie Leach at the latter's cottage, Meganticook Lake. On similar outings Charlie has been wont to establish new records in salt water fishing, and it remains to be seen if he will set any new stunts in his inland retreat.

"We are anchored alongside the moving picture industry here in San Pedro, Calif," writes Peter Nelson, chief boatswain's mate of the U. S. S. Oklahoma, "and naturally we hear a great deal about the Arbuckle case. I don't believe he should be condemned until all the facts are known." Mr. Nelson says that all of the bar-rooms are open in San Pedro, and a person can get what he wants, but the way some of it affects the drinker reminds him of Rockland "jakey."

The New York Bakery, which has been closed for a week while the proprietor, L. A. Weiss, and family have been on a vacation trip to New York State, reopened yesterday.

Mrs. B. R. Browne was in Bath last night, and delivered an address on "Answered Prayer" before the Sterling Bible class, of which she was formerly a teacher, at the Corliss street church. A banquet was served.

Mrs. John Tillson of Thomaston remembered the Courier-Gazette yesterday with a box of wild raspberries, among which were a number of strawberry blossoms. No wonder berries got frivolous, with weather like last week's.

William G. Robinson of Gardine was in the city Saturday, tipping off some of his old baseball friends that the Yankees are sure to win the World series. Billy's predictions do not often go far astray, but here's betting that the Grants give the Baberites a run for their money.

Commander Healey of Winslow Harbor Post had an interesting caller yesterday in the person of a ex-serviceman who had just received his discharge from the Federal prison in Atlanta, Ga., where he had served a year for smuggling. The ex-convict occupied a cell alongside Eugene V. Debs, the famous Socialist, and says that he attended to much of the latter's correspondence. Debs, he says, is hardly more than a skeleton. Late there has been a strong intimation that he would soon be pardoned by President Harding. Commander Healey's caller was armed with proper credentials and was seeking aid to reach Vancouver. Commander Healey arranged for his transportation to Bangor.

FULLER-COBB-DAVIS

Knights of Pythias of the 13th District will meet in convention with Georges River Lodge of Warren, Wednesday evening. Chancellor Commander F. M. Ulmer wishes a full attendance of the members of Gen. Berry Lodge. A banquet will be served after the work.

World Series' baseball returns will be furnished at The Courier-Gazette office commencing tomorrow afternoon. Call 770, or, better still, come down and watch the bulletin board.

Friday a stated assembly of King Hiram Council, R. S. & M. will be held at Masonic Temple, opening at 4 p. m. All the degrees will be conferred during the afternoon and evening, and a large class is assured. It will be the last assembly for work this year. At 6:30 p. m. supper will be served in the banquet hall by the Golden Rod Chapter. At 8 o'clock labor will be resumed for the beautiful S. E. M. Degree.

The week's performances of "Irish Eyes" in Portland were witnessed by 1900 persons, the Shubert-Jefferson Theatre being sold out for the entire week after the first performance. Manager Healey telegraphed to Manager Packard of Park Theatre yesterday that newspaper critics agree that Walter Scanlan is one of the greatest singers of the day and that he received an enormous ovation in his wonderful play. "Irish Eyes" comes to Park Theatre Thursday night.

Berkley D. Winslow is having his annual vacation from M. B. & C. O. Perry's Main street market.

Members of 5th company C. A. C. received their semi-annual drill pay last Friday night, the amounts ranging from $10 to $50. One bold sojourner is going to spend his on a honeymoon trip.

Leroy Patterson, who had been devoting a fortnight's vacation to a statewide research for excitement, resumed his duties as clerk at Moor's drug store yesterday. The ambitious soda flinger, who has been acting as executive officer of the ship in his absence rates next on the vacation list.

The Freshman class at Rockland High School numbers 105 this year, and the student who is to write the class history had better start pronto. Of course it's going to be a very famous class for two of its members—Andrews and Chapin—have already made the varsity football team. In fact the class fairly bubbles with talent, athletic and otherwise, and it has the spirit which is going to put Rockland High where it belongs.

A Knox county official who is forever doing some act of kindness was unusually reticent yesterday on the subject of boating. And perhaps you would be if you spilled several fair passengers into the water. But the water was shallow, the day was warm and everybody accepted the situation as a good joke. O. Henry could have made a capital story out of the little incident.

The quarterly meeting of the Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences will be held in the Grand Jury room at the Court House, Saturday at 1:30 p. m. The program includes a "Remarkable Botanic Trip" by Jesse A. Tolman; "Common Wild Flowers without Common Names," by N. W. Lermont. A discussion will follow. The public is invited.

Damariscotta Fair, the last one east of the Kennebec river, opens today, but the races do not begin until Wednesday, when the 2:35, 2:55 and 3:15 classes will be called. Thursday races will be in the 2:40 and 2:41 classes. Big purses are offered. The Park Band will furnish music.

Sheriff Thurston took pity on the editorial staff of this newspaper yesterday and brought in a generous sized pasteboard box full of McIntosh Reds, which delighted the eye as they undoubtedly will the stomach after they have been seasoned a bit. Mr. Thurston can have the unanimous vote of this staff whether he is a candidate for sheriff of Knox county or governor of Maine.

Frank L. Newbert has bought from Wyman Packard the Star pool room in Spear block, and later will operate a lunch room in connection. The equipment includes besides several pool tables a brand new billiard table. Dick doesn't claim to be a "shark" as a player, but is right there strong with the advice.

The 10-string match between Gardner and Lawry at Kennedy's alleys last night resulted in a victory by the former by a score of 952 to 927. The contest was virtually won in the first four strings, in one of which Gardner chalked up 123. Lawry's highest string was 115.

Mrs. Julia Gray, wife of Patrolman L. H. Gray, died yesterday. Funeral services Wednesday at 2 p. m. from the residence.

The steamship Camden made a special trip Sunday to clear up the freight congestion. H. H. Cudworth, assistant general passenger agent, and wife, were aboard. The Morse is hauled up at Camden, and the Westport and Southport are covering the Bar Harbor and Bluehill lines.

The busiest place on Main street today is just north of "The Bicknell," where Charles E. Bicknell is preparing the foundation for another apartment house and a coal office.

The remains of Howard Searles, who died Sunday at the Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary in Portland, arrive here today, and will be taken in charge by the Burpee Furniture Co. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. from A. W. McCurdy's residence, 109 Masonic street, and the burial will be in Thomaston. Mr. Searles was a brother-in-law of Mrs. McCurdy.

The auction sale conducted by the Rockland Motor Mart in Postoffice Square Saturday attracted a good sized crowd. W. H. Simmons and H. T. Mullen acted as auctioneers. A wide variety of used cars was on exhibition, and a number were sold.

King Solomon Temple Chapter has work on the Royal Arch degree at a special meeting Thursday night.

As a reward for having the largest attendance in the Junior department of the Methodist Sunday school during the rally day exercises, Oct. 2, Class 4 was entertained by their teacher, R. U. Clark, at the vestry Sunday afternoon. After a pleasant hour of story telling ice cream and cake were served. The class is out now to beat its rally day record of 20 present.

In the airship contest at the First Baptist Sunday school there was great rejoicing among John M. Bicknell's "Invincibles" when they seemed to hold the lead in the race by 100 points. But later returns and revised figures indicate that their rejoicing was probably premature, for R. S. Sherman's "Irresistibles" are running almost neck and neck with them. Both sides are hard at work this week trying to capture the lead next Sunday.

The golf season received a staggering blow Oct. 1 and each player sustained the loss of an hour a day through the resumption of standard time, but one more contest can be squeezed in and it will take the form of a tombstone tournament at the Country Club next Saturday. A supper at the club will follow in the wake of festivities and it is hoped that everybody who ever swung a club will be among those present. The event of the year, insofar as caddies were concerned, took place Saturday, when all the bag-toters of the club competed for appropriate prizes. First honors fell to Frank Knight, whose score for the nine holes played was 55. Frank took the prize of $5 with great modesty.

E. J. Lamb has bought from Elmer Dow a lot on the New County road, east of Anson Glidden's and will build a grocery store there.

Lewis Chandler of South Thomaston pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to attempted felonious assault upon Jennie Trull. He will be sentenced this afternoon.

Capt. S. L. Green, formerly of Deer Island and commander of the beautiful yacht Jarda of New London, who is home on a visit, discovered and made effective use of a novel "blind" on his recent duck shoot. Impatient at waiting for black duck, Capt. Green, except a mile out over the mud flats in Oyster River, buried himself completely in mud and returned with enough of those elusive birds to celebrate his 15th wedding anniversary by entertaining the Tango Club at dinner last night. The rooms of his home were beautifully decorated with autumn leaves. Cards were enjoyed after a delicious dinner.

World Series' baseball returns will be furnished at The Courier-Gazette office commencing tomorrow afternoon. Call 770, or, better still, come down and watch the bulletin board.

"IRISH EYES" A HIT

What Portland Paper Says About Play Coming To Park Theatre Thursday Night.

Rockland theatre-goers have a great treat in store, Thursday night, when "Irish Eyes" comes to Park Theatre with Walter Scanlan, the famous singing comedian heading the cast. The Portland Express had this to say about the play:

An Irish play, sweet with a love story that reaches the heart and bright with Irish funmaking of the colliking sort, is the stage setting that has been provided Walter Scanlan for the singing of his Irish songs and ballads which he does as perhaps no stage artist in America can do. But it was Mr. Scanlan's singing that the audience went to hear and their approval of his vocal efforts was unstinted as it should have been, for in his particular line as a player-singer he is probably unapproached in this country.

Some of his new songs are very sweet and pretty and notable among them is "The Galway Rose," which will probably be heard after the singer has departed. But good as the new songs are none among them is likely to approach in popularity "The Little Bit of Heaven" which Mr. Scanlan sang by request amid a perfect storm of applause followed by half a dozen curtain calls.

PARK THEATRE

Thomas Meighan scores decisively in his latest photoplay, "The City of Silent Men" which is shown today. The story deals with a county boy who goes to the city and falling into the hands of crooks, unconsciously aids in the commission of a crime and although innocent, is sentenced to prison. He made his escape and going to California, assumes another name and becomes superintendent of a factory. Then love enters his life and on his wedding day the shadow of his past rises before him. How he regains happiness makes a delightful story. Wallace Reid again proves he is no novice as a racing driver. "Too Much Speed," which comes for tomorrow, Mr. Reid is seen as dusty Rhodes, a racing driver who gives up the game to win old Pat MacMurrans' consent to marry his daughter Virginia. Thursday night comes the play "Irish Eyes"—adv.

"The Old Peabody Pew," which is to be given in the Methodist church Friday evening, is a dramatization by Kate Douglas Wiggin of her own story. The cast: "Mrs. Baxter," Mrs. Stanley; "Mrs. Burbank," Mrs. Littlehale; "Mrs. Miller," Mrs. Staples; "Mrs. Sargent," Mrs. Stewart; "The Widow Buzzell," Mrs. Rollins; "Miss Lobell," Brewster; "Mrs. Armstrong," "Miss Marie Sharp," Mrs. Tweedie; "Miss Nancy Wentworth," Miss Gladys Jones; "Justin Peabody," Dr. Ellingwood. There will be readings by Mrs. Ellingwood.—adv.

If you are a baseball fan and want to follow the World's Series, call at Thomas Sporting Goods Co., 291 Main Street, where reports covering each game played will be received over the wire in time by inning. Thomas Sporting Goods Company also invites out-of-town friends and fans to call Rockland 412, where information concerning the progress of World's Series games will be cheerfully given.—adv.

Francis A. Curtis and Jessie E. Larabee have filed intentions of marriage at the office of City Clerk Keene.

Boston Herald—Walter Scanlan's voice is a beautiful tenor. There is the ardor of youth and an evident enjoyment in his work.
Boston Globe—It must warm the cockles of the actor's heart to be greeted with such spontaneous enthusiasm as was manifested by the big audience last evening. There was no doubt about the huge enjoyment of the spectators, especially when the popular star sang the air of the "Old Sod" composed by himself.
Boston Post—Scanlan in Fine Voice. In a sweet and clear he sings without apparent effort.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson

© Western Newspaper Union.

FORSYTH'S SCOUTS, THE ORIGINAL "ROUGH RIDERS"

This is the story of 51 scouts, instead of just one, for together they won undying fame in one of the fiercest battles ever fought with the Indians on the frontier. They were Forsyth's Scouts, the "Rough Riders of 1868." Gen. George A. Forsyth was their leader—"Sandy" Forsyth, he had been called in Civil war days.

The scouts left Fort Wallace, Kan., in pursuit of a band of Dog Soldier Cheyennes who had been raiding in western Kansas. Early one September morning while they were camped on the Arickaree river in eastern Colorado the Indians appeared and tried to stampede their horses. As the scouts prepared to mount and give battle, Sharpe Grover, their guide, touched Forsyth on the arm. "Oh, heavens, general!" he cried, "look at the Indians!"

In the next instant the surrounding hills and valleys were alive with savages, who charged down upon the scouts, but were driven off by a few volleys. Surrounded and hopelessly outnumbered, there was but one thing for Forsyth to do. In the center of the stream was a little island on which grew a few small trees. "Make for the island, men!" shouted Forsyth. "It's our only chance."

They reached the island just in time. While Indian riflemen along the banks of the stream poured in a hot fire, a picked body of 500 warriors led by the Cheyenne chief, Roman Nose, charged down upon them, intending to ride over Forsyth's band in one red wave of destruction. The Indians were beaten back, they settled down to besiege the scouts.

Twenty-three of the 51 scouts had been killed or wounded when evening came. Forsyth was suffering from three wounds and Lieut. Fred Beecher, the second in command, had been killed, as had the only surgeon in the command.

For nine days, in spite of hunger and wounds, the little band of scouts beat off the Cheyennes, until two of the scouts managed to slip through the Indian lines at night and guide a force of cavalry to their rescue. Once Forsyth gave the unwounded scouts a chance to try to escape, leaving him and the other wounded to their fate, but they refused. "We've fought together, and we'll die together, if we must," was their heroic answer.

The island was named Beecher's island, in honor of their lieutenant, and today a monument stands on it to mark forever the place where Forsyth's Scouts fought so bravely.

HOW JACK STILLWELL WHIPPED A RATTLESNAKE

Gen. "Sandy" Forsyth's band of scouts had been surrounded by Chief Roman Nose's Cheyennes and in the sandy bed of the Arickaree river in eastern Colorado they were fighting for their lives one September day in 1868. They had no food; their doctor had been killed, and relief must come soon if they were to be saved. Forsyth called for volunteers to go to Fort Wallace, Kan., 100 miles away, for aid.

Every unwounded man at once offered himself for the perilous journey, but the general selected Pete Trudeau, an old hunter, and Jack Stillwell, a boy of nineteen. When night came the two scouts started. Taking off their boots, they walked backward down the dry river bed in their stocking feet to deceive any Indians who might come upon their trail.

When morning came they hid in a dry ravine within sight and sound of an Indian camp. They had nothing to eat or drink, and the sun beat upon them fiercely all day long. On the morning of the fourth day they found themselves on the open plain with no cover in sight.

Suddenly they came upon the skeleton of a buffalo surrounded by a rank growth of green grass. Into this scanty refuge Trudeau and Stillwell hastily crept. A large party of Indians appeared and halted within a hundred yards of their hiding place. The scouts were hugging the ground when Trudeau heard a hiss in the grass in front of him, and a second later a big rattlesnake crawled slyly out and coiled within a foot of the scout's head.

Stillwell was chewing tobacco, and just before the snake sounded his deadly rattle, the young scout leaned forward and shot the spray of tobacco juice squarely into the open jaws and eyes of the reptile. The rattler could not stand such a dose. He crawled hastily away. The Indians soon passed on without discovering the scouts. Stillwell's lucky shot had saved their lives.

Forty-eight hours later the two men reached Fort Wallace. Trudeau was completely broken by his terrible experience and he died a few days later, but when the relief expedition left Fort Wallace the undaunted Stillwell rode at its head. He lived to become a judge in Texas and a leading figure in that state until his death a few years ago.

Why We Say "She."

The discussion being on why we refer to an automobile as "she," one man said it was because when a car is slicked up and attractive we all admire her; when she acts properly she is charming; yet we often drive her into improper action by lack of care, and when she gets old and has lost her style we try to discard her and get a more pleasing one.—Boston Transcript.

SUPERSTITION IN THE CONGO

Natives Invariably "Make Charms" Before They Set Out on a Hunting Expedition.

Nearly everything a Congo native does is done at the dictation of superstition. Witch doctors and their strange and somewhat horrible "medicine" are in demand for all sorts of curious things. Their charms are "worked" for everything from curing sickness to bringing bad fortune upon an enemy. There may be a demand that a curse be removed from a whole town, or perhaps a curse is to be laid upon a single enemy.

One of the least unpleasant and most innocent of charms is that which is "worked" to invoke good luck in hunting. It has a certain picturesque quality that is engaging.

The Lower Congo is not a sportsman's paradise, says a writer. Game is not always to be easily found. Therefore, when a hunter whose prowess is admired and envied is about to die a curious thing happens. Just before he expires a few threads are drawn from his loin cloth. These threads are tied about the arms of a young man. This young man then has a specific duty in life and certain very definite obligations.

He superintends the burial of the mighty hunter. Then, whenever the hunters of his neighborhood are about to set out the young man goes with them to the mighty hunter's grave. He kneels with his face toward the hunters and his back to the grave. The hunters approach on hands and knees until close, then they dance about the young man and the grave to the rub-a-dub of a "charmed" drum. Palm wine is poured over the grave, while each hunter drinks to the departed.

A bit of the mud formed of the wine and the earth on the grave is rubbed on the forehead, the arms and the insteps of each hunter. This is supposed to give the hunters keenness, sureness of aim and swiftness in the chase.

At last the charm is completed. The hunters sing a song in praise of the mighty departed. Then off they go, assured they will have success in the field.

HER DOMESTIC LIFE FICKLE

Female Timamou Recognizes No Obligation of Loyalty to Either Her Mate or Offspring.

Feminine freedom goes a long way in the case of spiders (where the bride devours the bridegroom), but in spite of her hasty temper the female spider is a devoted mother.

The banner of "women's freedom" is carried much farther by the timamou, a South American bird.

She is a fickle wife and a confirmed child deserter. Two female timamou will fight for the claw of a blushing male bird, who accepts the winner without any voice in the matter.

As soon as she has laid a nestful of eggs, off she goes and fights another female for another husband.

Then she deserts her second husband, leaving him nothing but tender memories and more eggs. In time she amasses a kind of disconnected harem of husbands.

The husbands have all the tender qualities the wife lacks. They hatch the eggs, guard the chicks, and "mother" them.

"The Well of Montezuma."

Among the many natural curiosities of Arizona, one that is not often visited by tourists, is the singular bowl-shaped depression in Yavapai county, called "The Well of Montezuma." It is nearly circular, and between 500 and 600 feet in diameter at the brim. It lies in the midst of a nearly-level area. The sides are vertical to a depth of 30 or 40 feet. Below that they merge into a sloping shape, which extends down to a circular pool of water, alleged by popular tradition, as are so many other not very deep areas of water, to be bottomless.

This remarkable formation has usually been described as a "pit crater" of volcanic origin, the result of the falling of the roof of a cavern, formed in the limestone strata by running water. The water of the pool, it is said, flows out through a subterranean channel into the valley of Beaver creek.

Town's Natural Advantages.

The little river Arrow—no bigger than a good-sized brook—runs past the outskirts of the town of Redditch, England, on its way to join Shakespeare's Avon near Bidford, a few miles above Stratford-on-Avon. Along the bed of the Arrow you can find smooth pebbles of a peculiarly hard crystalline nature; they are known locally as "emery stones," and were invaluable for polishing needles not only when simple handpieces were in vogue, but also for a considerable time later. The makers gave a few pence to children for picking a dozen or two out of the shallows of the brook. Thus Redditch could polish its needles more cheaply than those towns which had to pay carriage for emery stones, and upon this tiny detail hinges the development of an important British industry.—Christian Science Monitor.

Hopeful Outlook.

"Well," said the Judge, "what's your argument this time? Aren't you ever going to get over the habit of beating your wife?"

"Yes, Judge, I'm beginning to have hopes. She don't look as though she could pull through many more of 'em."

"FIRST STOP, LADY"

By MYRTA ALICE LITTLE.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Little Mrs. Lane shaded her eyes from the bright sunlight that flared against the car windows, and tried to discover whether the jolty train was really nearing the station, or just halting for nothing. If only daughter had told the timid little traveler how long the trip to the city was.

Trembling fingers drew a letter from a worn bag. Her spectacled eyes, swaying to the motion of the train, read: "Mummie Dearest: Hal has broken our engagement or he let me break it. I'm lonely and hurt, and I need you. I want to lay my head in your lap and have you tell me why he did it. I care so much, Mummie, and I can't understand. I would come to you, but there's my position. And I promised to tell you if I needed you. Just get on the morning train and get off at the first stop. It's a big place. You can't miss it. First stop, and I'll meet you at Track 9. I'll expect you Tuesday. MAIDA."

The white head bent lower over the trim black dress, bobbed a bit from side to side, pillowed itself against the red velvet cushions. The blue eyes quivered shut. Little Mrs. Lane was asleep.

Then came a terrific jolt, a crashing bang of noise, and the train stopped. The door and both iron gates were open, and the brakeman stood on the ground at the right.

"Is Benton the first stop, sir?" quavered the weak little voice.

"First stop, m' lady," shouted the brakeman, signaling forward.

So there was not a moment to lose. Mrs. Lane mustered all of her courage and climbed down the steps at the left, and stood, a frightened little figure on the ground that crunched with cinders beneath her feet. The train moved out. So this was the "big place," but there was nothing in it.

Over the brown open country trotted a white horse drawing a buggy. A man was driving. He came nearer the patch of cinders, sighted Mrs. Lane, stopped, got down and began speaking as a woman might speak to a child.

"How's this? Lost out on the ranch? Well! well! We'll have to see about this."

Then little Mrs. Lane poured forth a part of her tale to him, about her daughter in Benton sending for her and the train's first stop, and the girl's not being there to meet her, and her being afraid, and would he please tell her how to find her daughter.

"You'd better come over to my shack, first, little lady," said the man. "You've got off some 20 miles by rail this side of Benton."

"And it isn't Benton? I didn't get off right? He meant the next stop was Benton, and he didn't call this a stop at all?" trembled the puzzled voice. "This ain't no place at all, sir?"

The man smiled. "It's not your fault. Get into this rig here and I'll drive you over to the shack, give you some tea and get word to your daughter somehow, and we'll take the next train. How's that?"

Over the tea the little guest's confidence increased in feeble wisps. But her wonderings about Maida grew and she voiced them.

"She's such an independent girl, sir, is Maida," she quavered. "She's never willing to rest too hard on other folks. I expect that's the trouble with the man that let her give him up. I ain't never seen him. But likely he decided that she was unfeeling when she was tryin' to be strong for the two of 'em. Ain't you drinkin' no tea, sir? 'Twould steady your nerves, mayhap. Maida Lane is what I call a thoroughbred, so to speak, if she is my girl!"

The man sprang to his feet. "I'll tell you what I'll do, little lady," he said. "I'll take my car and drive you into town the short cut over the hills. The old eyes lightened. "You're awful kind to a stranger," said Mrs. Lane. "I was coming on track 9."

"Glad to help you get there. Lone some out here. Came out myself to forget."

During the drive the man was silent. The little lady drowsed among the cushions he had piled for her. Just as they came in sight of the station she awoke. And surely that was Maida walking briskly toward track 9. The man's halloo stopped her, but she evidently saw her mother before she saw him. She rushed toward her and took her in her arms.

"I got off at the wrong place, but it was the first stop. He's been awful good to me," said the mother. "I don't know his name."

Then Maida looked, gave a sharp little cry and her pride and control gave way in one swift instant. But the man's arms were already about her.

"I was a brute not to understand when you wouldn't kiss me that night and when you sent me home and told me to stay. I do understand now. Don't tell me. But I thought: you didn't care, Maida—so I—"

"Care!" cried Maida. "If I told you how much I cared I'd have crumpled all up in a heap and cried forever."

"So you built your wall of ice and stayed behind it. Your mother made me see."

At first the little lady in black had been puzzled. But slowly her eyes grew bright.

"So I did get off at the right place, dearie, after all!" she whispered.

"The first stop was the right one, Mummie," Maida breathed. "The only one the gods would let you make."

Get Many Silly Complaints.

Every day the postmasters in the larger cities receive countless letters of complaint. Not unnaturally among so large a number there are many of a frivolous nature. For example, one woman wrote that the carrier who delivered her letters was engaged to a woman twice his own age, and requested that he should be asked to break off the engagement or be dismissed.

UNCONTROLLED IDEAS
Professor: Gentlemen, in your research you must begin your investigations with open minds.
Pinfeather, '23: But, professor, if I leave my mind wide open everything will escape.

HARDLY FLATTERING
She—I appreciate the compliment, but I'm afraid I could never make you happy.
He—Oh, yes, you could. You don't know how easily pleased I am.

AS A STARTER
Well, what's the first thing you son did after graduating from that expensive college?
Touched me for $300 to buy some girl an engagement ring.

HOPEFUL SCHEME
We want you to be treasurer of our club.
I am honored. How much have you in the treasury?
Well, we have a deficit just now, which we thought perhaps you would make up.

ALAS!

SOME SMILES
From the Old World.
P. K. Chu, editor of the Shanghai Daily News, who is in this country making a tour of American newspaper offices, has an Occidental sense of humor. A newspaper man during an interview with him jollied the editor by asking, "By the way, have you read the great Chinese novel, 'Chaw Main Street?'"
To which Mr. Chu promptly asked, "By Sin Loo?"—New York Evening Post.

A Beverage Disdained.
"I think I shall set up a soda fountain in Crimson Gulch," remarked the stranger.
"Don't do it," rejoined Cactus Joe with great earnestness. "The boys that used to ride in and shoot up a regular bar were only playful. What they would do to a soda water fountain would be plum vindictive."

Still There.
"Hello, old man! Seen Bobby Sponger lately?"
"Yes, Bobby's down at my shore place. I invited him down for a week-end."
"Why, I thought that was two weeks ago."
"It was, but you know Bobby is an expert at making both ends meet."

His Mind Clearing.
Doctor—Has your husband come out of his semi-unconsciousness yet, madam?
"Yes. I believe he had a lucid moment a little while ago."
Doctor—What did he do or say?
"He refused absolutely to take the medicine, and remarked that you were an ass."

Barring the Bard.
"Why don't you put on a good Shakespearean play?"
"Because," replied Mr. Stornington Barnes, "people who don't appreciate Shakespeare wouldn't go to see it; and people who do appreciate Shakespeare for some reason fail to care very much for my acting."

SELLING FOR $5 TOO
I understand that there is only about $5.27 worth of wool in the new "all wool" spring suits.
Horrors! I'd not be seen in such an indecent outfit.

Test of Philosophy.
"I care not for the fangs of fate," said one whose name was Jephtha Tate. But when he to a dentist ran. He was a sad and mournful man.

Symphony of Street Sounds.
"How can I compose in this racket?" snarled the composer. "The doorbell is jangling constantly, people are putting in coal, automobiles honk, and here comes a fish man with his horn."
"Work 'em all into a jazz composition," suggested his wife.

An Experience.
"Don't you believe a soft answer turns away wrath?"
"What makes you doubt it?"
"My wife asked me what I thought of her biscuits and she got hopping mad when I told her they tasted like mush."

Experience.
"How is Dubwaite's game of golf these days?"
"He's improving."
"Makes a better score?"
"No, but he has an easier flow of language when he loses a ball."

She Wasn't a Fan.
She—I'm so interested in football. I have a cousin you know, who was on the college team last year.
He—Indeed. What did he play?
She—Well, I forget just whether he was a touchdown or a punt.

Success.

PROPERLY RANKED AS HERO

Deserved Tribute to Collie Who Gave Master the "Last Full Measure of Devotion."

Clyde Scott, four years old, lies dying on his father's farm near Beckley, W. Va. His pet collie is dead. A vicious sow, bearing the scars of battle to the finish, is so badly mangled that she must be killed, too.

It is one of those simple stories of a dog to which all human sympathy responds, remarks the Baltimore Sun. The boy, playing in the yard, was attacked by the sow, which had escaped its pen. Hearing the child's screams the collie rushed to the rescue and engaged the sow in fight. It needs no assurance of the telegraphed item to tell him who knows his dog the details.

The child's mother came into the picture, bearing her torn baby to safety. But the dog remained. His was a supreme duty, that knew no compromise. The infuriated sow was a menace to those he loved. It was his business to remove that menace, and into the job he put his concern. It was his concern only to remove the menace, and at any cost. His own life mattered not at all, and in the end he lost it, in as noble a struggle for what he believed to be right as any that ever brightened the annals of man or nation.

We do not know the little collie's name. If we did we should like to print it in honorable memory of his gallant conduct. He was a soldier and a gentleman; he was a devoted comrade and playmate; he was all that a dog is and that a man should be. We hope he had a Christian burial, for he was a Christian, if to be Christian implies sacrifice of self and love for others. He was all of that and he was a hero—a hero on four legs.

PLAGUE THAT FOLLOWS WAR

In All Ages Rinderpest Has Marked the Path Taken by Armies on Their March.

The newspapers told recently of the trouble that arose when the authorities of Montevideo refused to admit to that port a little dog owned by a woman who had taken it there on a passenger steamer, the refusal being based upon the epidemic of rinderpest prevailing among the cattle of Uruguay. Rinderpest is the most terrible of the diseases that affect cattle, and is often called simply "cattle plague."

It affects, so far as is known, only the ruminant, cloven-footed animals—oxen, sheep, goats, camels, etc.—but is so infectious that it may be carried from one herd to another by attendants, dogs, cats and birds or by fodder. Therefore, the dog was excluded from fear not that it would contract the disease but that it might contribute to spreading it.

The cause of rinderpest is not yet definitely known, but it is an ancient disease which always breaks out after great wars. The ravages of the Goths and Huns in the early Middle Ages were followed by frightful epidemics. Its commonest symptoms are fever, cough, dysentery and exhaustion. Its mortality is high, but the disease is not necessarily fatal.

Grossmith Defines Humor.

Lawrence Grossmith, the English comedian, is quoted as saying: "There is no more difference between English and American humor than there is between English and American tragedy. All humor, whether it be English or American, depends upon the seriousness with which the person trying to be humorous acts the fool. This may sound like a paradox, but it is one of the most extraordinary paradoxes which are vitally true. If an actor does not enter into his humor with the full possession of his senses and all his faculties he misses the most of it.

"To be humorous it is necessary to lose oneself in one's part, retaining just sufficient introspective faculties to feel the sincerity of one's acting. Sincerity here, as in all other branches of acting is the mainstay. And 'sincerity' gets across the footlights whether it is in Germany, France, England or America, whether in tragedy, comedy, musical or dramatic plays."

Kaiser's Coach Brought Trade.

The ex-kaiser's gala carriage is for sale in Berlin. "One of the best strokes of business I ever made was to buy it," said Herr Ziehl, owner of a Friedrichstrasse establishment containing a restaurant, billiard room and a theater of varieties, according to the Continental edition of the London Mail.

"I bought it from the court-marshal and used it as an advertisement for the theater. Every night the carriage drove up to my theater and out stepped a grand gentleman or lady with the air of a royal personage. Naturally, crowds followed into the theater. Unhappily the royalists made such a fuss that the police forbade me to continue using it."

Road Building in India.

There is considerable activity in road making in various cities in India, depending upon the local authorities. In some places stone rollers, pulled by gangs of men, are used, and in other places steam rollers are to be found. A very useful machine is used in Lucknow, that has two rollers, the front one a steering roller. The rear chain is driven by a gasoline engine. It has a large gasoline tank and is well adapted for light work.

Social Action and Affection.

Among the delusions which at different periods have possessed themselves of the minds of large masses of the human race, perhaps the most curious—certainly the least creditable—is the modern "sol-disant" science of political economy, based on the idea that an advantageous code of social action may be determined irrespectively of the influence of social affection.—Buskin.

COPIED OLD ENGLISH BARREL

Pennsylvania Man Made First Standard Size Receptacle for the Transportation of Oil.

When crude oil was discovered in Pennsylvania in 1859, barrels commonly used for wine, beer, whisky, cider and other liquors were utilized by oil men as containers for their product. Anything that resembled a barrel was used and sizes differed so radically that there were many opportunities for fraud.

As an instance, it was discovered that frequently the staves were made extra thick, with the result that the content of the barrel was less than represented, and purchasers often found that they did not get as much crude oil as they were paying for.

In 1864-65 the first standard-size barrel was made by Samuel Van Syckle, at Miller Farm, near Titusville, Pa. It was of 42 gallons capacity, the size fixed in 1461 in England for the herring barrel during the reign of Edward IV.

Van Syckle specified the size of the staves to be used and made an honest 42-gallon barrel. Almost immediately he had practically a monopoly of the business and the odd-size barrels gradually disappeared.

The present system of gauging oil tanks was started in 1865, when F. E. Hammond of Miller Farm, Pa., was asked if he could figure the amount of oil contained in each vertical foot of certain tanks. In a few days Hammond prepared a table of one of these tanks, showing the amount of oil it would hold per inch from bottom to top, based on a measurement of 42 gallons to the barrel. Hammond's table came into general use, and this method of measuring tanks never has changed.—Oil News.

SOME MEASURE OF SUCCESS

Collector Got His Half of Debt, but Creditor Is Wondering Where He Comes In.

A Vancouver man tells of a sea captain who, ashore, makes his home in that city, and who had loaned a sum of money to a neighbor. The latter, after the loan was a year or two old, made no effort to pay it.

Now, the captain began to look upon the debt as a bad one, indeed. On one occasion, however, upon his return from a voyage, he heard of a debt collector noted for his ability to extract money from such delinquents. Accordingly, the captain called upon this collector and advised of the circumstances.

"If," said the skipper, "you can collect that debt, I'll give you half of it."

The collector promised that the thing would be done. The captain sailed away on another voyage, and, on his return, sought out the collector again. "Any success with that bill?" he asked.

"Well," said the collector, "I haven't collected the whole of it; but I did collect my half. He hasn't paid me a cent since. I keep after him, but it's just as you said when you gave me the bill—he hasn't any conscience about it."

Modeling in Rags.

It was the fashion of a little time ago to think scorn of the woodwork screens, the paper flowers, or the wax figures made by the women of the past, but now they are eagerly sought and added to collections of articles illustrating home life.

History repeats itself, and to this busy athletic age has come a wave of the old finger-work fashion. Lately it was pictures made with feathers, now it is little figures made from rags. These last were the idea of Mme. Wolkoff, nee Princess Troubetsky, formerly of the Russian Imperial court, when at Petrograd, where the little figures were sold for the benefit of Russian soldiers. Since Mme. Wolkoff has been in England she has modeled little statuettes of well-known people, all in characteristic attitude and life-like appearance. Odd pieces of rag have been manipulated to make these charming little figures, which vie with the paper modeling and the wax groups of the past.—Christian Science Monitor.

Breaking a Land-Clearing Record.

A total of 18,000 acres of land in Marinette county, Wisconsin, were cleared during the season of 1920. This is a record, and the increase will represent at least $1,000,000 a year in crops. The closing of the task was marked by a great blast of an acre of stumps near Wausau. At this point 158 sticks of dynamite were set off simultaneously as an electric impulse was transmitted by a presiding official who closed a switch. A land clearing school and 57 educational meetings were part of the campaign that made their efforts so successful, and explosives to the extent of 14 carloads were used in the undertaking.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

White Gold as Platinum.

It is an easy matter for the metallurgist to make an alloy with gold as a basis that has all the appearance of platinum and in London, recently, a great many persons have been "taken in" by the composition, paying platinum prices for jewelry afterwards found to be an inferior material.

For Japanese Women.

An important advance toward the emancipation of Japanese womanhood was made recently when the house of representatives in Tokyo adopted a bill granting women the right to attend political meetings.

Auditory Nerves.

The action of the ear is this. A sound is transmitted from some position, causing a disturbance in the air. This disturbance is collected by the outer ear, passed down the connecting passage, and strikes the skin of the drum, causing it to vibrate. The drum in turn communicates its vibrations to the oval window. Thence they travel to the liquid of the inner ear, and the hearing nerve gathers them up and transmits them to the brain.

IT TOOK THE JOY

OUT OF HIS LIFE

Had Indigestion So Bad He Could Not Eat Anything Without Suffering Afterwards.

"Tanlac has relieved me of a bad case of indigestion and rheumatism that has kept me in misery for five years," declares Charles Farwell, an employee of the Androscoggin and Kennebec Railroad living at 26 State St., Augusta, Me.

"I suffered from indigestion so bad it took all the joy out of life. I couldn't eat a thing without having terrible pains in the pit of my stomach and the gas pressed around my heart until I thought it would stop beating. At night I often woke up fighting for breath. I also suffered a great deal from rheumatism especially in my legs and back and the awful pain together with the gas on my stomach, made it impossible for me to get very much rest at night."

"Tanlac seemed to be exactly what I needed for I felt better right from the start and soon had a fine appetite and could eat anything I wanted and never suffered a particle from pains in the stomach, and I haven't been troubled with gas since I finished my first bottle. All signs of rheumatism have left me and I haven't an ache or pain of any sort in my body. I'm not a bit nervous and sleep all night without ever waking up. Although I'm working unusually hard just now I feel fine all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Rockland by Corner Drug Store; in Washington by F. L. Ludwig; in North Haven by W. S. Hopkins; in Vinalhaven by F. M. White; in South Thomaston by L. O. Hanley, and by the leading druggists in every town.

The Mark of Greatness.

It was a most successful little dinner party and Daubert felt very grateful that it was in his honor. All these celebrated people had been gathered together to meet him. It was most kind of his hostess, for really he was only a humble—a very humble, he hoped—artist. A distracting thing was the fact that the hostess' little son stared at him constantly and persistently throughout the whole meal. After dinner he managed to get the boy to one side, and he asked kindly: "You gazed at me all through dinner and I feel flattered. Would you like me to draw something for you in your autograph book?" "No, sir," answered the youngster. "But mother said that you had a reeding chin. Won't you do it for me just once? And then I'll show you how I can wriggle my ears!" —Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Good Money."

"Blood money" was the name applied in the Middle Ages and well into the more modern period to the money paid for bloodshed. It might be either the compensation paid by a man-slayer to the nearest relative of the victim, to secure himself and his kin from vengeance, or the money paid as a reward for bringing about the death of another directly or through evidence. It was once common among the Scandinavian and Teutonic peoples, who called this money payment "wergild." The price varied with the nature of the crime and rank of the victim. Certain crimes, such as the slaying of a sleeping person, would not be compensated by a money payment; such criminals were declared outlaws and could be slain with impunity. The term is now applied to the reward or bribe paid for giving up a criminal to justice.

Food in Minute Form.

An oyster five inches long consumes one-twelfth of a cubic inch of solid food daily, and to obtain it must filter eight or nine gallons of sea water. And, according to Doctor Kishinouye, the Japanese sardine must travel nine miles through the sea to obtain its maritime equivalent of our daily bread. So the question asks itself: Is there not some unsuspected source of obtaining nourishment available in the sea? The modern theory is that the Demersora, a plesioneous floating organic matter, invisible, disintegrating, largely moribund, and derived from planktonic forms raining down into the depths, constitutes the food supply required to supplement the diatoms. It settles finally on the floor of the sea as a thin stratum which has been found in the Arctic waters, and also in the Indian ocean off the Malabar coast.

Huguenot Exodus.

During the reign of Louis XIV the Edict of Nantes, which had conferred upon the Huguenots liberty of conscience and admission to all offices of honor and emolument, was revoked, largely through the influence of Madame de Maintenon. This was followed by a terrible persecution, over 100,000 Huguenots being driven out, to carry their industry, wealth and skill to other countries. They went to England, Germany, Switzerland and other parts of Europe. One band emigrated from France to America, settling at Fort Royal, S. C., in 1670. Others followed to New York, Massachusetts and other North American colonies.

When the children start a game, they "count out" to see who shall be "it." It's merely a process of elimination for making a choice.

When you buy goods through a mail order catalog you do much the same thing. There are often several items of the same class grouped on a page. You don't want this one because of such and such a feature. You reject that one because it lacks so-and-so. And when you have inspected all the pictures and read all the descriptions and eliminated those with objectionable features you finally take what's left.

If you could have seen the articles themselves, you might have found that one of the others would have suited your needs better. That's why it pays to trade where you can see before you buy.

BOOTH TARKINGTON

Eugene Sue, French Novelist.

Eugene Sue, French novelist, was born in Paris in 1804. He adopted his father's profession of medicine, became a surgeon in the army and served in Spain in 1823. In 1825, he joined the naval service, and in the capacity of surgeon was present at the battle of Navarino in 1827. On his father's death in 1829 he inherited an immense fortune, and, having abandoned his profession, he devoted himself to literary composition. His first work was a sea novel entitled "Kernock le Pirate," which was quickly followed by "Plick et Plock," "Altair-Gull," "La Salamandre" and "La Vigie de Koutven." Later he entered the department of both of historical fiction and the novel of real life. His most famous works are "The Mysteries of Paris" and "The Wandering Jew." He died August 3, 1857.

In the Day of Falconry.

When falconry was in its prime two kinds of birds were used—the long-winged hawk, or true falcon, and the short-winged hawk, which included the goshawk and sparrow hawk. In America the Cooper hawk and the sharp-shinned hawk belong to the latter class. The birds, hooded, were kept quietly tied, with "jesses" or little leather thongs around their legs, to which was attached a leash. This, in turn, was hitched to a block, in the case of the talons, and to a bow perch in case of the short-winged hawks. The latter were flown from the fist. Just before the flight the hoods were taken off, and when the bird was released he rose straight in the air and waited until the game was flushed or "served," when he made his swoop.

THOMASTON

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morse and Mr. and Mrs. Allison Wotton of Friendship motored to Portland Monday.

Mrs. Robert Davis and son of Rockport are spending a few days with Mrs. Sanford Hyler.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morse and Mrs. Warrill and son Arthur were weekend guests of Mrs. Elmer Morse.

The remains of Howard Scaries who died Sunday in Portland arrived in Rockland this noon. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of A. W. McMurtry, 59 Masonic street.

The first meeting of the Beta Alpha Club was held Monday evening at the Baptist vestry, a large number being present. A fine supper was served, the menu consisted of baked beans, cold ham, hot rolls, graham bread, salad, brownies, assorted cake and coffee. This was followed by the semi-annual election of officers as follows: President, Mrs. Florence I. Gardner; vice president, Mrs. Louise Hall; secretary, Miss Harriet Williams; treasurer, Mrs. Eva Beveridge. Mrs. William Atwood a popular member of the club who is leaving town soon, was presented with a beautiful bouquet. Miss Jennie Moody, the retiring president, was the recipient of a very handsome hand-painted basket in appreciation of her faithful service. The hour of music was much enjoyed with Miss Margaret Huggles at the piano, as leader of the community songs.

Mrs. Charles B. Lenfest and son Merritt of Rochester, N. Y., who have been spending the summer in Vinalhaven, have rented Mrs. Mabel Taylor's house for the winter. Mrs. Taylor and family will spend the winter in Boston.

The first monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held at the Congregational vestry Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. There will be speakers and a general discussion of plans for the year. It is hoped the impression does not prevail that membership in the association is limited to parents and teachers, as the same suggests. Interest constitutes eligibility in this case and any citizen may feel he is most welcome.

There will be a choir rehearsal at the Baptist vestry this evening.

Undertaker A. D. Davis motored to Portland Saturday for the remains of J. C. McQuarrie, who died at the Maine General Hospital from injuries received last Thursday. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his residence on South street.

The Ladies' Circle will meet in the Baptist vestry Wednesday for an all day session. Box lunch at noon.

A jolly crowd of 16 enjoyed a fine steak and onion fry at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson in Camden Monday evening in honor of Miss Letitia Creighton's birthday. Ice cream and a birthday cake were also a feature.

Capt. and Mrs. Walter Willey have returned from Portland where she spent the weekend with her daughter, Mrs. Lee Walker. Capt. Willey joined his vessel at Boothbay Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Cousins and daughter Barbara and Mr. Gibbs and Miss Cushman motored to Lake Auburn Saturday.

Mrs. Susan Bradford called on friends here Saturday.

Joseph Paquin was in Augusta Sunday.

Mrs. A. J. Lincken entertained friends at cards Friday evening. Refreshments were served.

Edward Andrews and Leander and Ralph Thorndike left Saturday morning for Portland for a week's gunning, making the trip in Thorndike's new Overland.

The District Convention of the Pythian Sisters will be held next Friday at Knox Temple, Camden. It is hoped a good number will be able to attend. Picnic supper will be served in the usual way.

Walter Lenfest of Bath spent the weekend in town.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held with Mrs. George Dowlin Friday afternoon at 2:30. Program subject "Peace and Disarmament."

Miss Dorothy Whitney spent four days at the Union Fair last week.

Mrs. Jennie Stearns of Camden spent the weekend with Mrs. Lawrence Dunn.

Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Peaslee and son Edward, Mrs. Lizzie Peaslee and Mrs. Harold Peaslee have returned from two weeks in camp at West Southport.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hadley of Union were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Pease Sunday, also Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright of Augusta.

WE LOSE THE FIRST ONE

But Rockland's Not Discouraged, Not So You'd Notice It
—Camden's Waterville Waterloo.

The Courier-Gazette had hoped to record a victory in the opening game of the football season, but perhaps it was too much to expect of a green team, which got a late start in practice and which has hardly had time to "find itself."

A resume of Saturday's game with Lincoln Academy shows that the visitors excelled in the first half of the game, while Rockland exhibited marked superiority in the third period and part of the fourth.

Penalized several times in the last period for obvious holding, the Lincoln County players were stung into a desperate attempt to stave off impending defeat and showed flashes of offensive play which were distinctly creditable to a school team.

Rockland lost the game, and by an apparently decisive score, yet the supporters of the orange and black came away from the Broadway ground with a conviction that the team has some excellent material and will give a much better account of itself as the season progresses. Clarence A. Whitney and John W. Thomas, who volunteered their services as coaches, are well satisfied with Saturday's showing, and so were Supt. Hull, the principal, Miss Coughlin, and others who understood the circumstances. The novices have had their baptism of fire, and it now remains to see how much they have profited by it when they meet Camden High in Camden next Saturday.

Lincoln Academy scored on the second play Saturday, thanks to a perfect forward pass, Marston to Carleton and so unexpected was the attack that there was nobody to prevent Carleton from dashing clear across the field for a touchdown. Schroeder kicked a goal, and with a score of 7 to 0 in their favor in less than one minute of playing the Lincoln County boys felt it to tackle Harvard.

It was not generally known among the spectators that the Lincoln Academy umpire had blown his whistle because Rockland was offside when Campbell did not hear the whistle and the touchdown was allowed. Lincoln Academy thus profited by what had appeared to be a violation of the rules.

Lincoln Academy had the better of the duel which marked the end of the period and when the whistle blew, after 11 minutes of vigorous work, the ball was in the visitors' possession on Rockland's two-yard line.

Schroeder carried the ball across for the visitors' second touchdown immediately after the second period opened, but Marston failed to kick the goal.

Rockland now began to get into high gear. Sleeper went through the "Scot" line for first down and Lord on a cross-pass play circled the visitors' right end for a long run. When tackled by Schroeder he was on Lincoln Academy's 4-yard line. The ball was practically on the line when Rockland lost it on downs. The period ended with the ball in Rockland's possession on Lincoln's 25-yard line.

Rockland made two successive first downs after the third period opened, but lost to Lincoln on a fumble. Captain Lord's boys were not to be stopped, however, and the skipper himself went across for Rockland's first touchdown after some brilliant ground-gaining. Rockland forfeited its chance to kick a goal by grounding the ball.

Lincoln Academy now rushed its heavy artillery to the scene of action, said artillery being a player by the name of Frances who is said to tip the scales at 225 pounds, but who had not been in the game earlier because of injuries received when he tried to stop the whole Camden team the Saturday before.

There was no more scoring in the third period, but early in the fourth Read flashed under the spotlight with some clever gains and a touchdown. Sleeper failed to kick a goal and Rockland lost a chance to tie the game.

Schroeder now reeled off a long run and would have scored then and there but for tackles by Reed and Record. A forward pass, Marston to Huntley, carried the ball to Rockland's one-yard line, and Schroeder went through for Lincoln's third touchdown. Frances kicked a goal. The fourth and last touchdown was made by Gay after another successful forward pass, Marston to Huntley. Huntley, by the way, is a former Rockland boy, son of Fred P. Huntley, who moved from Rockland to Damariscotta. He was too good to suit Rockland Saturday. The summary:

Waterville 33, Camden 0.

Camden High School met with a not unexpected defeat in Waterville Saturday, when it lined up against a much superior team. The Kennebec Journal says:

Waterville High School won its first home game Saturday from Camden by the score of 33 to 0. The home team literally wiped out the field with the visitors. Camden only making first downs once, while Waterville walked up the field with the ball and not once was held for downs. The shining lights for Waterville were Capt. Pooler and Thibodeau, while for the visitors Jay's gains and Bowers' tackles were the features. The interference that Waterville showed on end runs was a marked factor of the game, and not for a long time has the team shown up so well in that brand of play. In the last few minutes of play Capt. Pooler was injured on a line rush and Snowball was also hurt. The summary:

The Maine college, rounding into shape for the championship series, which begins on week from next Saturday, faced thus in Saturday's games: Bates 14, Tufts 10, Colby 7, Brown 12, Maine 0, Norwich 14, Bowdoin 9, Rhode Island 0. It is very evident this early that the Maine championship series are going to be the best in years.

Mulvaney, who during the war was one of the stars on the Rockland Naval Station team, and who has since been a powerful factor on the University of Maine eleven, is out of the game for a fortnight on account of an injury to one of his ankles received in the game with Norwich Saturday. Mrs. Mulvaney and friends were in the city Sunday on a motoring trip.

One of the Gray boys who summured at Friendship and who played a few games with the Lobsters in the Twilight League, played fullback Saturday on the Princeton team, when it defeated Swarthmore 21 to 7. His Knox county admirers are hoping that he will get into the big games later in the season.

Camden High has two games with Bucksport Seminary this fall, the first taking place on the Camden grounds Oct. 15, and the second in Bucksport Oct. 22. The Seminary is said to have drafted some good material from the Freshman class.

The ORIOLE

By Booth Tarkington
Illustrations by Irwin Myers

A TALE of pure delight; one of the great American writer's immortal "kid" stories.

Fit to go along with "Penrod," "Seventeen" or "Too Gentle Julia;" in fact, it is woven about the same interesting characters as the latter.

"The Oriole" deals with "thirteen," that transition age between childhood and youth when one never knows what the young human offspring will be up to next. It is the age when imagination takes the most unexpected turns and fancy plays the queerest pranks.

In this narrative Mr. Tarkington brings to bear all his genius for character, situations and humor. Every line is either a laugh or a study in the delectable ways of the young; the whole is a work of unbounded joy.

The Juvenile Chapter O. E. S. last Thursday evening held its regular meeting at the Masonic hall. The occasion was a special one. About 80 members were present and the Grand Patron Mrs. Mabel J. De Shon of Portland being on a tour of inspection. The chapter opened in due form accompanied by the floor work which was well performed and very attractive.

Four candidates were presented and initiated and instructed in the work, which was one of the interesting features of the evening. Following this the Grand Patron was presented by the chair and gave an interesting address relative to some of the features of the chapter and also made some criticisms regarding the work. After the address in appreciation of her visit and welcoming a magnificent bouquet of pinks and other flowers of the season was presented her by Louis Eaton. At the close of the exercises refreshments were served. Following this the floor of the hall was cleared and the evening spent in playing games. The occasion was much enjoyed and all departed well pleased.

Why Central Maine Preferred is Maine's Most Popular Investment.

Why is it that the holders of Central Maine Power Company 7 per cent Preferred Stock buy and buy again, many of them year after year.

What does the stock give them that they do not get in other securities?

Here are a few of the advantages:

1. MOST EXCEPTIONAL SAFETY. Every cent of the net proceeds from the sale of stock goes into physical property.

2. ABSOLUTE REGULARITY OF DIVIDENDS. Through more than a sixth of a century, never a dividend has been missed—60 paid in succession, through war and peace, inflation and deflation, always sharp on time.

3. TAX-FREE IN MAINE. Our stockholders are looking ahead to the day when intangible securities will be really taxed in Maine. They are buying securities free from direct state tax.

4. GOOD LOAN VALUE. Banks in the state know the company and the stock and, as a rule, lend around 75 per cent to 80 per cent of its par value.

5. READILY SALABLE. The stock moves rapidly. Our own organization regularly sells from 300 to 700 shares a week. For those who buy the stock through our own organization, a special selling service is provided, to handle the resale of their stock.

6. THE MONEY INVESTED IN THE STOCK is being used to develop Maine. People who have the interests of the State at heart are tired of seeing Maine money shipped South and West, to build up those sections. They want Maine money safely invested in Maine. They know that nothing means more for the future of Maine than the development of Maine water powers by Maine Companies. This is Maine's great chance to grow.

Perhaps you will find Central Maine Power Company 7 per cent preferred stock a most desirable investment for your purposes. The price is $107.50 a share, the yield is 6 1-2 per cent net.

CENTRAL MAINE POWER COMPANY

AUGUSTA, MAINE

Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Young. A fireplace is being added to C. A. Shields' cottage, The Laurie. The Memorial Association supper netted $32. H. M. Bowes of Thomaston was in town Friday on a business trip. Thursday evening, at her home, Mrs. Albra Vinal Smith was given a birthday surprise. The following friends were present: Mrs. W. G. Fossett, Miss Blanche Hamilton, Muriel Black,

Miss S. E. Hill, Mrs. Charles Lenfest, Mrs. George Grey, Mrs. Abner Cooper, and Mrs. Dora Vinal Boman. The hostess was presented with a beautiful gift and the evening was spent with music. Luncheon was served.
